Wagner College was ranked in the top 25 percent of northern regional universities in the new U.S. News & World Report Best Colleges 2018 guide, placing number 37 out of 145 schools in the regional top tier.

This is the 19th year in a row in which Wagner has appeared in the top 25 percent of schools in its category.

The Grymes Hill college was tagged as a “best value” among northern regional universities.

“The higher the quality of the program and the lower the cost, the better the deal,” U.S. News editors wrote about this designation.

Wagner was also recognized for national excellence in the category of Service Learning, one of eight “Programs to Look For” thought of as the “academic programs that are believed to lead to student success,” according to U.S. News editors. Last month Wagner was named as a top colleges in the Princeton Review’s 2018 “Best 382 Colleges” guide.
